Transport across the membrane The chemical structure of the cell membrane makes it remarkably flexible, the ideal boundary for rapidly growing and dividing cells. Yet the membrane is also a formidable barrier, allowing some dissolved substances, or solutes, to pass while blocking others. Cell - Transport across the membrane | Britannica Endocytosis- the process of taking material into the cell by means of infolding, or pockets, of the outer membrane. Creates a vesicle/vacuole inside of the cell to transport the material. Exocytosis- the process when the membrane of the vacuole surrounding the material fuses with the cell membrane, forcing the contents out of the cell. Membrane Transport Practice Questions Flashcards | Quizlet Correct answer: simple diffusion. Explanation: Plasma membranes of the cell are permeable to molecules that pass through the phospholipid bilayer easily, namely small nonpolar molecules. Due to this specificity in permeability, membrane proteins are often required to transport molecules across the bilayer.
