Measuring the Diffusion of an Innovation: A Citation Analysis A knowledge production mode is a term from the sociology of science which refers to the way (scientific) knowledge is produced. So far, three modes have been conceptualized. Mode 1 production of knowledge is knowledge production motivated by scientific knowledge alone (basic research) which is not primarily concerned by the applicability of its findings. Knowledge production modes - Wikipedia arguments about knowledge diffusion and disciplinarity (i.e., silo vs. web arguments) are counterproductive. Disciplinary researchers do import and export ideas, but they do not trade with all disciplines equally. The important question, then, is not whether disciplines are silos or connected in evolving social and intellectual webs in general.
